THE AIR OF MILFORD.

A Scientific Examination of its Properties. Its Vaporiness, Sapidity and General Gasiness Critically Considered.—A Careful Analysis After John Marshall, M. D.

There has been no question raised as to the purity or sufficiency of that colorless, tasteless, odorless gas which surrounds and permeates our lovely village, but, to allay the suspicious which might possibly arise in the minds of any unwary person who has stood too long on a corner with his mouth distended and thereby caught an air colic.

5000 copies of the paper containing the above interview are on draught, and can be had for the phenomenally low sum of 5 cents each by Hotel keepers and others who do irrefragably to advertise the glorious air of Milford.

Carbon Dioxide is also present, but this may be attributed to the combustion of campaign Havanas, respiration after imbibing freely of a plant of the genus allium, and hop water, and may be detected by passing the air through a solution of barium hydroxide, or taking a quantity in your nostrils.

Ammoniacal gas sometimes appears which is especially noticeable in the spring when your neighbor dumps the contents of his collar and a lot of chicken feathers in your alley or back yard and you are obliged to burn them.

Sulphurous anhydride is always present, and may result from street corner arguments. It is physically inoffensive but morally nauseating.

Nitric acid and ozone are present in small quantities. They may be discovered by having a mule place his hind foot in proximity to your corporosity, and they will turn milk sour. Professor, it is generally understood that Milford air is colorless, now will you state as clearly as your present condition will permit, the distinction between clear and colored air?

Well, if you closely observe the air over a glass cylinder approaching a horizontal position, partially filled with a substance from which aqua pura has been carefully eliminated, at first the air will appear perfectly pellucid, but repeated experiments of this character will soon cause it to seem sfumato, gradually changing to roseate, and lights will miraculously double themselves and dance like dervishes. This is a danger signal, and means that it is high time to take a walk in the open where you can procure plenty of fresh air.

Soft soap is frequently introduced at such soanances especially if you are accompanied in your observations by a candidate.

Professor, does air ever solidify? Well, it sometimes approaches to a mimous thickness and density, which grows more palpable as the consumption of limburger, pretzels, and wet goods increase.

Professor, does Milford air possess any medicinal qualities? From the perfectly transparent character of our air generally, as above demonstrated, we could hardly expect them to be pronounced. I may safely say, however, that an air diet for twelve hours or even less will induce a state of sapidity wonderful in proportions. I can assert further without fear of successful contradiction that no native of, or visitor to, Milford has ever survived who did not constantly continue its use.

Professor, as between water and air, which do you consider most necessary for the promotion of health or the prolongation of a material existence?

Well I know men who seldom if ever use water except for bathing purposes, and little for that, who are hale and hearty specimens to-day and may be seen on our streets, living testimonials of the fact, but I have never known any person to discontinue the use of air and survive the experiment. Is there anything else Professor that you care to add?

Yes, said the learned Professor his nose glowing with zeal. I think it high time we take a little spiritus frumenti.

Wilhelm Roubling, of Hoboken, N. J., who has been boarding for sometime with George Haas in Shohola township, was found dead on the shore of Brink Pond last Friday morning. He was troubled with heart disease and was accustomed to go to the pond to bathe his feet as he thought this gave relief. Not returning to his boarding place Thursday evening search was made and he was found lying on the shore dead, next morning. Heart failure is attributed as the cause. He was aged 43 years.

Coroner Geiger was summoned but on learning the facts did not deem an inquest necessary. The remains were taken to Hoboken for interment by a brother of the deceased last Saturday.

Big Peach Crop in Sight. There is every prospect now that the peach crop this year will exceed the one of two years ago, when something like 9,000,000 baskets of fruit were shipped from Delaware. The growers estimate that the crop will be fully this large, while others say it may run as high as another million and probably two, providing nothing attacks the trees between now and plucking time, and the farmers are not looking for any such calamity. In Kent county, Md., which is a comparatively small peach belt, the crop is estimated by old growers to reach about 1,000,000 baskets.

Killed by Lightning. During a heavy shower at Easton Monday evening Geo. Miller, aged 19, a son of John Miller, the florist, residing on Paxinosa Heights, was struck by lightning and instantly killed. He and a companion were caught in the storm and sought shelter under a cherry tree. The bolt struck Miller on the head, ran round his shoulder and entered his body above the heart. It then came out again and ran down his left side, tearing a portion of flesh out of his leg. His companion was rendered unconscious by the fluid.—Free Press.

Kicked by a Horse. Willie J., the seven-year-old son of Liverman Jacob Van Tassel, was severely injured last Friday, being kicked by one of his father's horses. The blow took effect on his forehead making a wound which necessitated seven stitches. Fortunately the stroke was a glancing one lacerating the flesh only and not injuring the skull. It was a very close call however. Dr. Wenner rendered medical aid and the boy is recovering nicely.

A Missing Man Found. Isaac Slutter, a young man, who has been missing from his home near Sciota, this county, for some weeks past, was found in a field near Reading, Pa., one day last week, nearly dead from hunger and exposure. He was removed to a hospital when he soon expired. Slutter was not of sound mind and would frequently wander away from home without any one knowing it.—Jeffersonian.
